Elementary School Teachers' Mathematics Instructional Decision Making in the Context of District Mandates on Instruction Heather Anne Martin, 2008 In the current educational climate teachers in low performing schools are experiencing pressure from state and district policy makers to raise student performance on state tests Some district administrations have undertaken various measures including implementing numerous and specific mathematics content standards adopting particular curricular packages and requiring teachers to use them as their primary instructional materials and even creating pacing guides with uniform timelines for presenting lessons to students These efforts have had the cumulative effect of urging teachers to stick closely to a standard curriculum in order to raise student test scores Teachers must also interpret and attend to the needs of their students and ideally teach their students to understand mathematical concepts and processes as opposed to narrowly mastering procedural skills It may not always be possible to both follow administrative mandates about instruction and meet student needs and teachers may have to make a compromise between these two objectives In this study I examined how elementary school teachers in a particular accountability pressured school decided to teach mathematics Drawing on multiple interviews and ten classroom observations per teacher I created portraits of the mathematics instructional choices of four second grade teachers including their use of instructional materials such as textbooks I drew on an analytical framework adapted from Stein Grover and Henningsen 1996 to assess various features of the lesson in order to note the interaction between the materials and the teachers decisions about how to use them I developed a lesson signature for each teacher a visual representation of the typical organization of the teacher s lessons and how materials were used within them My findings indicated that the teachers individual goals for their teaching beliefs about their students needs and interpretations of the district s curricular mandates interacted to steer their instructional choices to very different results Two of the teachers dutifully followed the textbook while two essentially disregarded it in favor of other materials Teachers own senses of their autonomy to make curricular decisions and their support for their students autonomy in learning math emerged as important factors I suggest implications for teacher professional development and curricular materials development explore how educators actually use data and technology tools to achieve lasting improvement in student performance The first comprehensive examination of the field this volume introduces the history of testing and data use explores current practices and tools and presents a groundbreaking model for data driven decision making Book Features A valuable framework based on a three year project sponsored by the National Science Foundation describing how data are transformed into usable knowledge Informative case studies illustrating how schools are using data to inform best practice Suggestions for how digital resources can be used to improve teaching in the classroom A thought provoking treatise on educational reform from the state perspective Irregular Serials & Annuals ,1985 Teacher Agency in the Process of State

Mandated Reform Kyle C. Ruggles,2009 Under No Child Left Behind NCLB federally funded schools and Local Educational Agencies LEAs that do not meet Adequate Yearly Progress AYP criteria for two consecutive years are designated Program Improvement PI mandating participation in school reform interventions In February 2008 the California Department of Education CDE released a corrective action plan mandate requiring all LEAs or school districts in Year 3 of PI to participate in intensive moderate light or other levels of technical support that includes participation in the District Assistance and Intervention Team DAIT process The DAIT process brings outside consultants and district office administrators into schools and classrooms for regular walkthroughs and assessments of improvement plan implementation Yet little is known about how these state mandates influence teachers instructional practices and decision making power or agency This study explores teachers perceptions of the DAIT process and how agency is influenced in an urban fringe pre kindergarten through grade 8 PI school district in California that volunteered to pilot the DAIT process during the 2006 2009 school years The socio cultural theory of learning Gallucci 2003 and the principal agent theory Ferris 1992 guide the analysis of this embedded and longitudinal multi case study of three middle schools and the district office within the PI school district Rich thick qualitative descriptions from 24 teachers and five district office administrators engaged in state mandated reform emerge from the single case and cross case analyses Teachers perceive the DAIT feedback as vague and lacking in teacher involvement in classroom visitations which led to teachers viewing the process as superficial Yet teachers also considered the DAIT process as beneficial in increasing teacher team reflection and collaboration around a singular common instructional focus of reading comprehension which seemed to be positively associated with agency A variance of teacher agency levels was found to depend upon school context and how teachers perceived themselves while balancing the costs and benefits from DAIT feedback Findings also reveal that the DAIT process may have compromised teacher agency due to the lack of teacher participation and involvement in the development of the process potentially eroding teachers sense of professionalism

Test Driven Linda Valli,2008-07-24 I don t always know students by face I know them by data an elementary curriculum specialist explains ruefully in this broad examination of how No Child Left Behind impacts schools and shapes teaching practice Capturing the changes teachers are experiencing especially in the areas of mathematics and reading the authors
